Persons having keys will observe the following rules:—

When it is necessary to use the signal boxes, go to the one nearest to the fire, and put your key into the outside door, open it and pull down the hook on the inside once, or until you hear a bell within the box, close the door, and remain to direct the firemen to the locality of the fire.

Do not try to take your key out, as it is locked in, and will be returned to you.

If, upon opening the door, you hear the bell within the box ring, do not pull the hook for one minute, or until it has stopped ringing, for it will indicate that an alarm is being sent from some other station. If the box does not ring go to the next nearest box.

Persons having keys will be held responsible for their use. Do not give an alarm for a fire seen at a distance; do not open the box except in case of fire; do not give an alarm until certain there is a fire.

Keys are left at stores and dwellings nearest to the boxes.

Keys can be obtained by any responsible person upon application to the Chief Engineer, at his office, or to the Superintendent of Fire Alarm and Police Telegraph, City Hall.

The University of California.

The University is located at Berkeley, and is reached by ferry and railroad from San Francisco, and horse railroad from Oakland. It was instituted by a law which received the approval of the Governor, March 23, 1868. Instruction was begun in Oakland in the autumn of 1869.

The commencement exercises of 1873 were held at Berkeley, July 16th, when the University was formally transferred to its permanent home. Instruction began at Berkeley in the autumn of 1873.

The College of California, which had been organized several years before the University, transferred its property and students upon terms which were mutually agreed upon, and closed its works of instruction in 1869.

The College was incorporated in 1855, and through its agency a part of the Oakland property of the University, and the Berkeley site, now owned and occupied by the University of California, was secured.

The site of the University at Berkeley is a domain of about two hundred acres, situated on the slope of the Contra Costa hills, about five miles from Oakland, facing the Golden Gate. It is traversed by two water courses; is much diversified in aspect, and is adapted to a great variety of culture. A part of the site is reserved to illustrate the work of agriculture and horticulture, and is now under cultivation.

The undergraduate colleges were the only ones included in the original organization. The professional colleges were added from time to time. These latter are located in San Francisco.

This University is an integral part of the public educational system of the State. As such it aims to complete the work begun in the public schools. It offers the best opportunities in the State for a higher education. Through aid from the State and the United States, and by private munificence, it furnishes ample facilities for instruction in Science, Literature, and the professions of Law, Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy. In the undergraduate course, i. e., in the Colleges of Letters, Agriculture, Mining, Mechanics, Civil Engineering, and Chemistry, in the Literary Course, and in the course in Letters and Political Science, these privileges are offered without charge of tuition, and to all persons resident of the State, who are qualified for admission. Persons from other States are admitted to equal privileges upon the payment of a small matriculation and tuition fee. The professional courses, being self-sustaining, require as reasonable tuition fees as possible. All courses are open to all persons without distinction of sex. The Constitution of the State provides for the perpetuation of the University under its present form of government.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE—The object of the course in this College is, besides general culture, to familiarize the student with the science underlying the farmer's calling, and with the best practice of its several branches, as a preparation for the intelligent and successful exercise of his profession, whether as a practical farmer or an agricultural expert.

COLLEGE OF MECHANICS—This College offers the education necessary for the mechanical engineer, and for such professional pursuits as involve a knowledge of machinery. If such is not the aim of the student, he will receive the advantage of such instruction as will enable him to follow any vocation based on the exact sciences.

COLLEGE OF MINING—This College is designed for students who wish to become mining or metallurgical engineers, or to engage in one of the many pursuits connected with the mining industry, such as surveying and mapping of mines, the assaying and working of ores, the designing and use of mining or metallurgical machinery, or the exploration of mines.

COLLEGE OF CIVIL ENGINEERING—The object of this College is to give thorough instruction in those studies which pertain to the profession of Civil Engineer. To a very considerable extent these studies are likewise preliminary to the profession of the architect. They are also serviceable to all who wish proficiency in the application of mathematics and physics.

COLLEGE OF CHEMISTRY—The course of instruction in this College is designed for those who wish to become professional chemists, either as teachers and investigators, or as analytical chemists, and manufacturers in chemical industries; and also for those who wish a thorough groundwork in the science of chemistry, both theoretical and practical, as a preparation for the future study and practice of Medicine, Pharmacy, Metallurgy, etc. While chemistry is the prominent study of the College, the course offers at the same time an opportunity to pursue a somewhat extended range of studies in all the sciences, and such selection of elective studies may be made as to meet the special needs of several classes of students.

THE CLASSICAL COURSE—This course leads to the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and corresponds to the usual academic course of the leading American Colleges. It is designed to offer preparation for professional study, and to furnish a liberal education. Prominence is given to both Latin and Greek.

LITERARY COURSE—This course leads to the degree of Bachelor of Letters, and has the same general purpose as the Classical Course. The principal difference in the curriculum is that students in the Literary Course do not take Greek, and as an offset enjoy a fuller course in English, French and German. A broad foundation of literary, historical and scientific culture is laid as well in the Literary as in the Classical Course. Those who expect to become teachers or editors will notice the adaptation of the courses to their future vocation.

State Deaf, Dumb and Blind Institute.

Pure water is supplied by hillside springs, and the elevated site insures the purest of air. A better location could not have been chosen. On the 17th of January, 1875, the beautiful and costly stone building occupied by the institution was destroyed by fire, and the exigencies of the case, with more than a hundred helpless unfortunates to shelter and provide for, were indeed great. But the spirit of energy, coupled with that of benevolence, which inspires the citizens of Alameda County, found means to build a temporary structure without delay, and, as early as April 21st, three months from the time of the disaster, the school was again opened. The buildings include a series of structures, including "Homes," a central refectory, school house, etc., all of which accommodate about two hundred and fifty pupils. The buildings are of the most substantial character, having concrete and stone foundations, brick superstructure, walls lined with brick, slate roofs, all partitions of brick, and stone stair-cases throughout. Every arrangement to secure health and comfort has been made, while the system of segrega-

INSURE IN THE Largest Pacific Coast Company.

THE

INSURANCE COMPANY

OF CALIFORNIA.

Assets and Premium Income Greatest of All the American Companies Organized West of New York State.

The Fireman's Fund derives its income from about fifteen hundred agencies throughout the United States, having the largest agency system of any Western Company, and thus securing a judicious scattering of its risks; while its popularity is attested by the fact that its gross premiums for 1883, show an increase of more than $150,000 over those of the previous year, and that on the Pacific Coast (its home field) it writes more premiums than any other Company, American, or Foreign.

OF NEW JERSEY

Will not assume risks known to be extra hazardous; but if the insured keeps within the reasonable restrictions of his policy for the first three years, he is then

ABSOLUTELY FREE

To Travel When and Where He Pleases or to Engage In any Occupation Whatever,

Without having to ask permission from the Company and without extra charge, excepting only for army and navy service, in which case a permit is required.

The special hazards incurred by the Company under the above liberal provisions are regarded as coming within the legitimate risks of a life time, and the

Advantage to the Policy Holder

ALAMEDA.

THE town of Alameda is most eligibly located on the easterly shore of San Francisco Bay, occupying a peninsula about four miles in length, and from three-quarters to a mile and a half in width. By the construction of the canal now under way for the purpose of improving the Oakland harbor, which will connect San Antonio Creek with San Leandro Bay, it will assume its original form, that of an island. This peninsula is covered with a heavy growth of live oaks, from which the town derives its name, Alameda signifying in Spanish a shaded avenue. Alameda has an area of about 2,200 acres, and includes within its boundaries, connected by a substantial drawbridge, the Bay Farm Island, which, as its name would indicate, is chiefly devoted to agriculture, and possesses, as does the mainland, a soil of peculiar fertility. Here are raised many of the finest vegetables to be found in the San Francisco markets, and several of its residents are extensively engaged in hop-culture, their products always finding ready sale at highest market rates. A large portion of the island was originally salt marsh, which has been reclaimed by a system of dykes, and made productive and consequently valuable. Around the northern shore of the island there exists a curious deposit of broken shells, presumably of the native oyster, several feet in depth, which makes a fine covering for garden walks and driveways. The greater portion of the tide-water lying between the island and the mainland is utilized for oyster-beds, in which industry a large amount of capital is invested.

Every foot of the high land of Alameda is arable, the soil being a deep, rich, sandy loam, and before it became too thickly settled and too valuable for such purposes, much of it was cultivated by vegetable and fruit growers, who found their occupation highly remunerative. This industry is by no means neglected at the present day, and Alameda can boast of some of the finest small fruit and garden truck farms in the State. The cultivation of flowers and shrubbery is so general, that a dwelling unadorned with a handsome garden is apt to be classed as the abode of a shiftless family. In every direction green lawns and well-kept grounds gladden the eye of the visitor and create within him an impression decidedly favorable to the people in whose midst he sojourns. The tenderest plants are here grown in the open air, so mild and balmy is the atmosphere. Harsh winds, and cold, damp fogs, are almost unknown, as the town lies out of range of the winds coming through the Golden Gate from the ocean, and is also protected by its dense barrier of native trees. The winter season is particularly pleasant, as the sandy soil quickly absorbs the rain, and mud—nasty, sticky mud—is an unknown quantity. In summer there is generally a cooling breeze from the surrounding waters, dispelling the sweltering heat, which, further inland, often makes life almost unendurable.

In every portion of the town a bountiful supply of surface water of excellent quality may be found at an average depth of sixteen feet, while artesian wells are quite numerous and comparatively cheap. On the island, and near the shore-line at the eastern boundary of the town, several flowing wells have been secured. The main water supply, however, pure from nature's fount, is furnished by the Artesian Water Works, owned by Capt. R. R. Thompson, a citizen of great wealth and commendable public spirit. The water is drawn from a number of large artesian wells, located between High Street and San Leandro Bay, from whence it is forced into an immense tank of wrought-iron, 60x60 and 11 feet deep, which covers the top of a building specially erected on Park Street for the purpose. From this reservoir it is distributed through the mains and supply pipes, the fall, 60 feet, giving sufficient force for domestic purposes. In case of fire, the engineer of the works is notified by telephone, and the powerful pumps at the wells are at once applied to the mains, affording a stream of such power that it has been deemed necessary to issue an order that in no case must a fire hydrant be closed until the connection has been removed. This heavy pressure obviates the necessity of having fire engines to pump from the mains, and the fire department of the town is composed merely of four hose companies and a truck company.

A bird's-eye view of Alameda generally gives the beholder an idea that its surface is perfectly flat, but this is far from being the case. Throughout the entire length of the peninsula is a ridge from which the ground gradually slopes to the water on the north and south, this ridge at its highest point being twenty-nine feet above high water. This fall creates an excellent natural drainage, and to this fact may perhaps be charged the failure to provide a proper system of sewerage for the town. At the rate at which the population is increasing, it will soon be absolutely necessary to take decisive steps in this direction. Of course, sewers have been constructed in the thickly settled portions of the town, and these all run toward the north, leaving that portion of the town south of the ridge above mentioned, in a sewerless condition. An ordinance of the Board of Town Trustees prohibits the discharge of sewage on the south side, in order that the facilities there afforded for bathing may not be disturbed. A main sewer, with laterals, will doubtless be built to carry off the sewage matter to the deep waters of the bay.

Along the sandy beach on the south line of the town are scattered numerous bathing establishments, of greater or less pretensions, which, in their proper season, attract throngs of visitors from neighboring cities, preference being given to Alameda on account of the higher temperature of the water, which, in passing over the sandy flats on the easterly side of the bay, receives a certain amount of heat from the rays of the sun. The more frequented of these places are provided with coffer-dams, in which the water is impounded, thus affording the bather an opportunity to sport in the aqueous fluid at lowest tide without parading over the long stretch of beach left dry by the receding element. Other establishments "point with pride" to the fact that they have no dams, and their patrons must either wait the tide or hunt the water. The principal bathing houses are located at the westerly end of the town, and are conducted in an excellent manner.

In the matter of traveling facilities, Alameda challenges the world to produce a place so favored. From Park Street, the business center of the town, horse-cars make half-hourly trips to Broadway, in Oakland, a distance of four miles, charging a five-cent fare. The Central Pacific Railroad makes thirty-one trips daily, passing through Oakland to San Francisco; time, less than forty minutes. The South Pacific Coast (narrow-gauge), running its boats by way of Alameda Point, with a branch from that point to Oakland, makes seventeen trips a day in about equal time. In addition to these local trains, the narrow-gauge freight and passenger trains pass through the town on their way to Santa Cruz and intermediate points, and the Central Pacific runs a daily freight train for the accommodation of local traffic. The fare to San Francisco is fifteen cents for a single trip, but commutation tickets are sold, which entitle the holder to one round trip a day for one month. These tickets are sold at three dollars, which brings the fare down to five cents a trip. This is certainly low enough to suit the most exacting anti-monopolist, but free rides are cheaper, and Alameda does a great deal of riding absolutely "without money and without price." These roads charge no fare within the corporate limits of the town, and all who feel so disposed may ride backward and forward, from station to station, at their own sweet will, commencing at 5 A. M., and stopping an hour after midnight. The Central Pacific has within the town five stations and about three miles of track. These free-riding arrangements nonplus the stranger, but it is "in the bond." The result of this system, naturally enough, is that pedestrianism is below par in Alameda, and many of her citizens will wait half an hour for a train rather than "foot it" for half a mile. Another peculiar feature is that the town is so shaped as to make it impossible to find any point, except on the island, distant more than four blocks from a station. At Alameda Point, a short distance south of, and parallel with the training walls of the Oakland harbor, an extensive and costly pier, with ferry slips and depot buildings, is being constructed by the San Francisco and Colorado River Railroad Company, a corporation recently organized and composed of the men who direct the fortunes of the South Pacific Coast road, and it is generally supposed that this point is to be the terminus of a transcontinental system of narrow-gauge railroads.

Alameda is essentially a residence town, and perhaps a majority of its adult males are people whose interests lie in San Francisco, but who prefer crossing the bay in a comfortable steamer, and be whirled from the landing to their homes in roomy, well-appointed trains, to taking a decidedly uncomfortable trip in the horse-cars or over a coble line to the Western Addition or the Mission hills. There is a charm about this ferry travel which hardly exists elsewhere. Every passenger has plenty of room—no pushing or crowding as in the street cars; here one meets his chosen circle at the same hour each day, and the time consumed in the trip passes pleasantly away—and then the everlasting verdure of the live oak trees alone is worth a trip across the bay, to a man whose mind is racked with business cares, and who needs an entire change of scene to distract his attention. As a class, Alamedans are intelligent and well-to-do, owning their residences and being able to keep them in good condition. In fact, the family that lives in a rented house is the exception rather than the rule, and this will, in a great measure, account for the handsome appearance of the town.

Manufacturing establishments are offered special facilities along the line of the bay shore in the way of cheap land and shipping facilities, by water or by rail, which can hardly be excelled in any town on the coast. So far, few have taken advantage of these facilities, there being but three places of the kind in the town, namely, the works of the Pacific Coast Oil Company, where native oils are prepared for illuminating purposes, a borax refinery, controlled by William T. Coleman & Co.

of San Francisco, and Bennett's furniture factory. There is no doubt that on the completion of the Oakland harbor improvement, which will result in draining the marsh lands lying along the northern line of the town, Alameda will have at least her fair share of factories and workshops.

Alameda has a population of over 6,000, and ranks second in the second county in the State. It was incorporated as a town in 1872, and is conducted in the most economical manner. The officers provided by its charter are as follows: A Board of Trustees, consisting of five members, who serve without pay; a Board of Education, six members, whose services are also gratuitous; an Assessor, Treasurer, and Tax Collector, Surveyor and Street Superintendent, Attorney and Clerk, Chief of Police, and School Superintendent, the monthly pay of these officers aggregating $366.65. During the ten years of the town's existence, the municipal taxation has averaged 68 cents on each $100 of valuation.

The School Department of the town is an object of pride to its citizens, there being a high school, two grammar schools, and four primaries, with about 1,000 pupils enrolled therein. In the department thirty teachers are employed, at an aggregate monthly cost of $2,000. In addition to the public schools there is a convent, in charge of the Sisters of Notre Dame, and two kindergarten schools.

In the matter of postal facilities, Alameda, though too small to receive any benefit from the free-delivery system, is specially favored, having within her borders two post-offices, "Alameda" and "West End," the former being located at Park Street, the latter at Webster Street, two miles distant. As a matter of course, there is telegraphic and telephonic communication with the outside world.

The intelligence of the people will certainly not be disputed when it is known that three weekly papers are here published, namely, the Encinal, now in its fifteenth year, the Argus, in its sixth year, and the News, aged two and a half years. The free Library and Reading Room is a flourishing institution, having on its shelves about 3,400 books, with a monthly circulation of 1,250 volumes. It is well patronized by people of all conditions in life, and appears to have a firm hold on the public favor.

In the way of public buildings may be named the Park Opera House, owned by a joint stock company, having a seating capacity of 600, Tucker's, Holtz's, and Harmonie Halls, and the Odd Fellow's and Masonic Halls. Odd Fellow's Hall, a fine, two-story building, costing about $6,000, was built by Encinal Lodge of Odd Fellows, and occupies one of the most prominent corners in town.

Fraternal societies here have a most healthy growth, there being three lodges of the A. O. U. W., two of the I. O. C. F., and one each of F. and A. M., I. O. O. F., K. of P., A. L. of H., K. of H., I. O. G. T., and P. O. S. of A., and a post of the G. A. R. Besides these societies, there are a number of organizations of a social, musical, and literary nature.

The various religious denominations are well represented, the Methodists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Baptists, Congregationalists, and Catholics, each having their own houses of worship, various other sects holding services at divers times and places.

In conclusion, Alameda offers to those in search of a home, unusual advantages, embracing good land at a moderate figure, the purest and best of water, perfect natural drainage, excellent schools, bountiful religious privileges, low taxation, a salubrious climate, unequaled traveling facilities—in short, everything that a reasonable person could ask, unless the lack of a cemetery might be considered a drawback.

BERKELEY,

ALAMEDA COUNTY, is a beautiful residence town situated in the foot-hills north of Oakland, and distant about eight miles from San Francisco.

Berkeley is the site of the University of California, the massive buildings of which are plainly visible from all parts of the town, and from the bay. Also the State Asylum for the deaf, dumb, and blind, the buildings of which likewise stand in bold relief against the background of green-covered hills immediately in the rear. Berkeley is noted principally for its beautifully shaded walks and drives, its handsome residences, and its incomparable view of the surrounding country, the bay and its islands, San Francisco, the Golden Gate, and, away in the dim distance, the Pacific Ocean dotted here and there with passing vessels.

Berkeley is well provided with churches, also with schools, both public and private. It has a post, express, and telegraph office, and is connected with Oakland by steam and horse cars; also with San Francisco (via Oakland), by local (C P R R) trains, making half-hourly trips during the day.

WEST BERKELEY

Lies along the bay on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad about one and one-half miles west of Berkeley, and is the location of several large manufacturing establishments, giving employment to a large number of men. It has, also, churches, public schools, a post and telegraph office. It is connected with San Francisco by Central Pacific Railroad (via Oakland), and also by ferry.

Factory and Office, 51 BEALE ST., bet. Market and Mission. San Francisco.

Krogh's Patent, latest improved self-regulating Windmill, and first premium Horse-Power, for all purposes, such as pumping water, chopping feed, churning, sawing wood, running machinery for manufacturing, mechanical, or other purposes.

Our latest improved self-regulating Windmill was patented March 15, 1881; is warranted to be the best wind machine ever invented, very simple in construction, strong and durable, will pump more water than any windmill now in use, and once put up they require no attention whatever, except oiling. They are built to withstand and adapt themselves to the fury of the gale, as well as to light breezes, and to work steadily WITHOUT EXPENSE.

Our Horse Powers are complete in every detail, and possess every improvement and advantage that can be combined in such machines. They are provided with air-tight, dust-proof, self oiling journals. Two men can take either of them apart and put them together with ease.

Tanks, Pumps, Pipes, Pulley, Shafting, etc., furnished to order.

CONTRA COSTA COUNTY.

Of the choice locations for shipping and commerce this county has among the most favorable in the State, its entire northern and western borders being traversed by a line of the Central Pacific Railroad, along which the overland trains to and from San Francisco pass, while the waters of San Francisco Bay and the San Joaquin River that wash its shores afford access to all manner of shipping, from a fishing boat up to the largest ocean vessel.

Fruits and cereals of all kinds known to California climate, flourish here. Many large dairies are carried on in the hills, from which great quantities of milk are shipped every morning to San Francisco. There are also three extensive coal mines in active operation, from which many thousand tons of coal of good quality are annually taken.

Contra Costa has many pieces of picturesque and beautiful scenery. It can also boast of the most conspicuous mountain peak in the State—Mt. Diablo—to the summit of which there is a good wagon road.

Martinez is the county seat, beautifully situated on the Straits of Carquinez.

ALAMEDA COUNTY.

Is bounded on the north by Contra Costa county, on the east by San Joaquin county, on the south by Santa Clara county, and on the west by the Bay of San Francisco. This county ranks next to San Francisco in population, shipping industries, educational institutions, churches and general improvements. It received its name from Alameda creek, the largest stream in the county, whose banks are thickly bordered with cottonwood and willow trees, presenting the appearance of a shaded avenue, called in Spanish an "Alameda."

This county has an area of about eight hundred square miles, and is beautifully diversified, from the salt marsh land bordering on the bay to the Contra Costa mountains, in some points two thousand feet above the sea level.

The county is well supplied with water, and good crops are the rule with scarcely an exception. Consequently farmers are well-to-do, and are comfortably located on small but carefully tilled and productive farms. They raise great crops of wheat, barley, corn, oats, hay, potatoes and the finest kind of fruits.

Next to San Francisco, this county is more extensively engaged in the manufacturing industries than any other, and the probability is that it will very soon become the manufacturing center of the State. Its location is in every respect most favorable for this purpose.

Alameda county with its picturesque scenery, healthful climate and proximity to the metropolis is specially adapted for suburban homes, a fact already recognized by a great many San Francisco business men, who have palatial residences in Oakland and suburbs, Berkeley, Alameda, Brooklyn and Fruit Vale.

In the southern part of the county grapes are raised very succesfully, and an immense quantity of wine and brandy is made annually. Vegetable gardens, cultivated by Portuguese, Italians and Chinese, are also numerous throughout the county.

JAMES L. KING, NOTARY PUBLIC, 308 California St., S. F.

THE GIANT POWDER COMPANY. Bandmann, Nielsen & Co., Gen'l Agents.

Its educational institutions, both State and private, have acquired considerable fame. Among the first may be mentioned the State University, and Institution for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind, at Berkeley, and the numerous Public and High Schools throughout the county. Of private institutions are the Berkeley Gymnasium, Harmon Seminary, Bowen's Home School for Boys, California Military Academy, Mills Seminary, Hopkins Academy, California Medical College, Oakland Normal School, Pagoda Hill Kindergarten, Snell's Seminary, Sacred Heart Convent, Perry Seminary, Misses Fields' Home School for Young Ladies, Sackett School, the Classical and English School, St. Mary's Academy, Sisters of St. Joseph, St. Joseph's Academy, St. Joseph's Institute, and Washington College.

The county is divided into six townships, Oakland, Brooklyn, Alameda, Eden, Washington and Murray.

The railroad facilities of the county already developed, together with the projected lines now in progress, place it far in the van of all the counties of the State in its means of intercommunication. The completion of the California and Nevada Narrow Gauge Railroad, on which the iron is already laid through the greater part of the county, will see all of its important valleys bisected by rail. Communication with San Francisco is maintained by half-hourly service of the Central Pacific and South Pacific Coast Railroad ferries, the complete convenience of which brings all of the bay cities of the county into such close connection with San Francisco as to in fact constitute them a part of that metropolis.

Oakland is the county seat. The county has no large rivers, but lesser streams are quite numerous. Artesian wells abound and flow abundantly.

DECOTO.

A new town recently laid out on the Central Pacific Railroad, 20 miles from Oakland and 3 miles from Niles. Its projectors claim for it a promising future. Overshadowed on the rear by the high bluffs, which here form the advanced sentinels of the coast range, and flanked and fronted by a broad vista of level plains, its wide avenues already well shaded with the fragrant eucalyptus would seem to justify its selection as the spot for a suburban home. It has post. express and telegraph offices already established.

noticeably among which is the Japanese Persimmon that Haywards owes much for its present reputation. This feature has made it an established summer resort, and secures for it a fair share of the guests who seek relief in such scenes from the oppression of a city's summer, its principal hotel, the Haywards House, being always full during the season, and the drive to Tony Oakes' has come to be regarded as a second edition of a "a trip to Brighton." The population of Haywards is about fifteen hundred.

LIVERMORE.

A thriving, growing town of about one thousand inhabitants, located in Livermore Valley on the line of the Central Pacific Railroad, and about forty-eight miles from San Francisco.

It has one first-class hotel, the Livermore House, sustains two weekly newspapers, "The Livermore Herald" and "The Livermore Valley Review," and has one of the largest flouring mills of the county. The latter, under the efficient supervision of its proprietor, William Laumeister, is running to its full capacity. It manufactures by the roller Process, which is the latest improvement in milling, and is fast superseding the millstone; the flour is of better quality, and greater in quantity than by any other method. It does a flourishing business, and is justly regarded as one of the most important interests of the town.

The Methodist, Presbyterian and Catholic denominations have and support here commodious and comfortable church buildings and organizations.

The Livermore valley being very productive in grain, large and extensive warehouses for storage purposes have been located here, so that in this respect Livermore is not excelled.

West of the town are some of the finest vineyards in the county, prominent among which may be named the Olvina and the Berkeley Colony, owned by five or six different parties.

Livermore has post, express and telegraphic offices, as well as telephonic connection with other towns.

MISSION SAN JOSE.

A small town in the southern part of the county, three miles from Washington Corners, to which point freight for the town is shipped via the Central Pacific Railroad. This town is noted as being the original settlement of the county, being, as indicated by the name, one of the original Missions founded by the Jesuit Fathers, and was for long years one of the important posts in the cordon of Missions through which their early evangelical work was propogated. It is still the seat of a theological institution of the Order. The town has post and express offices.

NEWARK.

This thriving and energetic town is located twenty miles southeast from Alameda on the line of the South Pacific Coast Railroad, and is, as a town, one of the direct results of the business sagacity and enterprise which created and developed that line of railroad. Simultaneously with the projection of the road, the necessity of an advantageous location for the plant necessary for the construction of its rolling stock was foreseen, and Newark was selected. Under the stimulus of works so located the town has steadily grown until it is now the most important station between Alameda and San Jose. The car works of Messrs. Carter Bros, originally started as above, have extended their operations so as to enter the field of general competition and are now working steadily in the construction of passenger and freight cars, street cars, etc., for any and all customers outside of the original line. The Newark Iron Works, located here, have also developed a large and important business, and has come to be regarded with the car works as one of the salient features of Newark's prosperity. There are two hotels, the Park Hotel and the Newark House. The town has postal, express and telegraphic communications equal to any in the county aside from Oakland.

SAN LEANDRO.

This place, situated on the Central Pacific Railroad, 16 miles southeast from San Francisco, was originally and for a long time the county seat, the removal being only caused by the magnitude of Oakland's wonderful growth in population and material prosperity. San Leandro still retains the lead in population among the towns of the county, aside from the bay cities adjacent to San Francisco. It is located on the creek of the same name, and is surrounded by fertile and productive fields, which have attained the highest reputation of all lands in the State in the production of vegetables for the metropolitan markets of San Francisco. It has fair hotel accommodations, supports a weekly newspaper, and has complete postal, express, railroad and telegraphic facilities.
